Four UC Santa Barbara Graduates Win Top Academic Awards

Four graduating seniors in the College of Letters and Science at the University of California, Santa Barbara have been selected to receive awards for outstanding academic achievement at commencement exercises on June 14 and 15.

Anne Francisca Casillas, a communication major from Thousand Oaks, will receive the Luis Leal Social Sciences Undergraduate Award for outstanding interdisciplinary achievement in the social sciences. The award was established in honor of Don Luis Leal, a distinguished visiting professor of Chicana and Chicano Studies whose presence and scholarship have greatly enriched the Santa Barbara campus.

Dmitriy P. Kolodin, of Simi Valley, who is graduating with a degree in molecular, cellular, and development biology, will receive the Francis Colville and Terry Dearborn Memorial Award for outstanding academic achievement as an honors student majoring in the sciences. The award was established in memory of Francis M. Colville and Terry H. Dearborn, associate professors of physical education at UCSB.

Katherine Marie Ross, of Hanford, who has a double major in German and linguistics, will receive the William R. Reardon Undergraduate Award for outstanding academic achievement in an arts or humanities discipline. The award is named for William R. Reardon, a UCSB professor emeritus of dramatic art and former associate dean in the College of Letters and Science.

Cali Elise Johnson, of Canyon Lake, who has a double major in biopsychology and pharmacology, will receive the Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr. Outstanding Senior Award in recognition of her outstanding scholarship and contributions to the campus community. The award was established in memory of Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr., who served as chancellor and professor of soils and plant nutrition at UC Irvine and as acting chancellor at UCSB.

The College of Letters and Science is the largest college at UCSB and the third largest in the UC system. The college enrolls about 16,000 students -- 80 percent of all UCSB undergraduates -- and offers nearly 80 majors and interdisciplinary programs and more than 30 academic minors.

About UC Santa Barbara

The University of California, Santa Barbara is a leading research institution that also provides a comprehensive liberal arts learning experience. Our academic community of faculty, students, and staff is characterized by a culture of interdisciplinary collaboration that is responsive to the needs of our multicultural and global society.
